On the President's Train
Fishing and Thinking
Plans Ahead
He Looks, Feels and Is Well

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THIS IS WRITTEN on a special train, carrying back to Washington President Roosevelt from his short fishing trip on Vincent Astor's boat Nourmahal.

The President, apparently not superstitious or a believer in "hoodoo," landed from the Nourmahal at Miami at nine o'clock yesterday morning, disregarding the unpleasant incident of about one year ago and advice of friends to board the train at Jacksonville.

He would not adopt a course that might seem to indicate lack of confidence in a friendly city. As a matter of fact, the President does not waste much energy on being afraid of things.

He rode through the city, from the dock to the railroad station, in an open car, smiling and raising his hat as he passed slowly through the cheering crowds that lined the streets.

By the way, he saw a city haphier, and 100 per cent more prosperous than the Miami of last year.

Vincent—President Astor, (the middle name comes with the yacht) had traveled to the President at the railroad station, not far from the water's edge, every well regulated Poseidon being supposed to stay near the water.

The rest of the party are on the train, including General Johnson, the NRA "high-muck-muck" and Donald Ribberg, NRA's legal adviser and sworn enemy of all "stuffed shirts" that would hamstring, betray, belittle, and undermine the new era.

What Mr. Ribberg says of those stuffed shirts reminds us of Villon's poem concerning the "est. mafoucirot au royaume de France" that would wither and kill the kingdom of France. Villon did his best, but Ribberg's style is the more victorious.

General Johnson and Mr. Ribberg, who came down to meet the President and talk to him on the trip North, were urged by the President to get off somewhere and catch a few minutes of rest.

At West Palm Beach they had not made up their minds about that. Playing stuffed shirts and chucking down on cushions is more fun than catching sailfish.

The President's party caught one hundred and ten good-sized fish Wednesday, which settles the question. "Is the President a good fisherman?" He is, when he feels like fishing, but he goes to sea, first, because he likes the water. His mother's father used to run his own ships to China, under sail. He goes to sea, also, because out there no telephone rings.

At the station, cameramen, standing on high trucks, were grinding out moving and talking pictures, as the President landed on the train platform, good naturedly, smiling at an old lady who shouted:

"I want to see the President can't I see him?"

She saw him, and saw a man in good health, with powerful, wide shoulders, contented eyes, and a head so big that even the late Bourke Cockran's hat would probably not be too big on the top of it. Cockran wore a "miserable" hat.

At along the railroad, at every station, big and little, thousands of automobiles lined up, and whole populations gazed, hoping for a sight of the President.

At this moment the train stops at Fort Pierce, and, apparently every man, woman and child has heard that the President is passing through. One stender young man hopes that his small six-year-old boy, with curly, golden hair, will have a chance to show the President his new cowboy suit and toy pistol, "new speciality." The President steps out on the platform, when

100,000 OIL WORKERS THREATEN CODE STRIKE

Washington, April 13 (AP)—Harvey C. Framing, president of the International Association of Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers of America, told reporters today a strike involving 100,000 members of the organization will be called "within 48 hours" if wage differentials prepared by the planning and co-ordinating committee of the oil code authority are adopted. (Other strike news on page 8).

WOMAN GETS 3 DAYS IN JAIL AS DOLE CHEAT

Mrs. Bessie Silverman, 28, widow, of Fourth st., Chelsea, today was sentenced to one day's imprisonment on each of three charges of larceny. She was accused of receiving aid from the Revere welfare department at the time she was on the Chelsea rolls for $4 a week. The court offered to suspend the sentences, which are to run concurrently, but Mrs. Silverman insisted on appealing.

Baby Saved From Charles River

2 FIGHT SWIFT CURRENT AT WALTHAM

Pulmotor Revives Girl After Cries of Play-mates Bring Aid

Norma Crane, 2, one of 10 children of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crane, 27 Benefit st., Waltham, was pulled unconscious from the Charles River near Elm st. today and saved from death after firemen revived her with a pulmotor.

The girl had fallen off the river bank while playing with other youngsters. Their screams attracted Thomas Thompson, 173 Newton st., and Arthur Little, of Moody st., both Waltham.

They hurried to the scene and found the swift current carrying the girl down stream. They waded in fully clothed and brought her ashore.

Firemen were called and succeeded in reviving her. She was later taken to her home suffering from immersion.

It was Thompson's third role of hero in the past few years. Last winter he saved a dog from the river and several years back rescued a boy from drowning there.

'World' Court Just League Bait to U. S.

ACROSS the Atlantic, where the governments and peoples of the old world know full well that the League Court is "the judicial organ" of the League of Nations, they make no hypocritical pretenses to the contrary.

These pretenses have been invented by our own internationalists for home consumption. They seek in this way to disarm American suspicion of this court by contending that it has no connection with the League of Nations and is entirely independent of that entangling, political alliance.

This is the reason why the new drive to drag the United States into the League of Nations by the back-door of the League Court is camouflaged as an appeal to the American people to accept membership in a tribunal to which these internationalists have given the false but high-sounding title of "the World Court."

Any intelligent high school student in the United States can easily discover the indissoluble ties that bind this League Court to the League of Nations.

IN 1920 the council of the League of Nations appointed a committee of experts to draft a plan for the organization of the court provided for in

FAMILY RELIEF 'RABBIT' HOPS ROLLS GROW CRUTCHES

Washington, April 13 (INS)—At all time peak in this number of unemployment on relief rolls was reached on April 1, despite unemployment gains of the last year. Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins said today.

Finance on relief April 1 numbered 4,600,000, compared with 4,600,000 at the peak of last year. Hopkins said. He attributed this to exhaustion of family reserves. Hoping on relief additional numbers who never before have applied for aid.

The principal cause of the rise in relief rolls in March, he said, was the continuous reduction in the number of employees on civil work projects, many of whom transferred to relief rolls.

2 CITY CHIEFS TAKE PAY CUT

Two more of Mayor Mansfield's department heads today volunteered to have their salaries reduced to $4200 a year.

They are Corporation Counsel Henry E. Foley, whose pay is $10,000 minus 15 per cent cut, and "Solicitors' Relief" Commissioner Charles H. Carey, $7200 minus 15 per cent. Mayor Mansfield took no action on their offer because, he explained, he has not completed plans for reductions.

The mayor indicated adjustments where high ranking employees will receive compensation equal to salaries.

He had not made formal request for reductions as yet, and I had not expected to hear from department heads," the mayor said.

Pay Cut Strikes in Paris

Paris, April 13 (AP)—Work of strikes and demonstrations in protest against cuts in the pay of government employees who had continued in war veterans' pensions began today.

FRANKHOUSE, RHODES PITCHING MOUND

Braves Field, April 13—(Ins)—Rhodes, pitcher, and Frankhouse, pitcher, today had their first season's game. Rhodes, of the Braves, pitched a 2-1 victory over the Red Sox.

Chill Breeze Keeps Crowd Down to 3000 for Game

Batting Order

Braves Field, April 13—(Ins)—Rhodes, pitcher, and Frankhouse, pitcher, today had their first season's game. Rhodes, of the Braves, pitched a 2-1 victory over the Red Sox.

NEW-AND-OLD

The Braves appeared stirred in their new, white home uniforms, with red-trimmed blue caps and white-trimmed red stockings. The Sox stuck to their last season's gray road clothes.

Leading "Dusty" Rhodes was the Sox starting pitcher. The Braves' Fred Frankhouse in the hill. Neither was expected to go more than five innings because of the chill in the air.

Bill McKechnie, Braves' pitcher, didn't do a uniform because of his toe rye. He's forced to wear glasses and decided to do his make-up in the safety of the bench.

The Braves got off to an early lead. Reynolds, however, kept the Sox in the running with a homer in the second.

Play by Play

FIRST INNING

Red Sox—Bly, pitcher, after 1½ into a double play, Whitney Lee to Jordan. Lee threw out Judge.

Braves—Urbanski singled to center. Bly threw to second. Whitney Berger singled to center. Urbanski dropped a second. Bly was safe on Bly's fumble. Urbanski dropped a second. Bly was safe on Bly's fumble. Urbanski dropped a second. Bly was safe on Bly's fumble.

SECOND INNING

Red Sox—Urbanski threw out Johnson, episode hit a home run into left-center. Salfers popped to Urbanski. Ferrell batted. Whitney Berger struck out. Rhodes struck out. ONE RUN.

Braves—Hogan fied deep to Rogers. Frankhouse struck out. Urbanski popped to Weber. NO RUNS.

Mae West Suffers Influenza Relapse

Hollywood, April 13 (INS)—Work on Mae West's new picture was postponed today after the actress was reported to have suffered a relapse of her recent attack of influenza and ordered by her physician to remain home.

Claudette Colbert, film actress, was reported ill with a severe cold and work also was delayed on her new picture.

Every Citizen Should Ask Congressional Representative to Back McLeod Bill

Every citizen should be interested in the McLeod bill, now before Congress. The measure provides for full payment of depositors of closed banks which belonged to the Federal Reserve System. Communicate at once with your congressional representative, urging him to work for enactment of the bill at once. Ask your representative to urge the House rules committee to report a special rule for immediate consideration of the McLeod bill on the floor of the House.

Protest Is Filed on Fletcher Bill

Protest on the Fletcher-Bayburn bill has been formally entered at Washington by nearly 200 prominent New England corporations. The bill proposes permitting the continued use of government obligations to back Federal Reserve notes and thus marginally dependent on the stock exchange.

STUDENTS HURT IN FURIOUS HARVARD 'BATTLE FOR WAR'

1 HOUR'S STRIKE BY LEAGUERS LEADS TO FREE-FOR-ALL

Students' League which sponsored the strike. At 11 o'clock, the students left their classes.

How many anti-war demonstrators joined in the strike was impossible to determine because as they arrived at the steps of the Widener library, they were joined by the members of the Michael Mullins Chowder and Marching Club and the rest of the student body.

MAKES HURTS BOMB

The Michael Mullins Club, led by four students attired as world famous figures, had previously announced that it would join in the strike for "bigger and better war."

The leaders were dressed as Michael Mullins himself, Adolf Hitler, Karl Marx and a storm trooper. Marx himself threw a bomb into the crowd, but it was a harmless one.

Fiscards bearing all sorts of inscriptions from "Down With War" to "Down With Peace" and "Down with Everything," were prominent in the crowd.

When the time came for the speaking, the fun began. An "imported" member of the league sought to address the gathering. He got about two words in when a roar of cat-calls and boos forced him out of the picture. He was followed by several others, equally as unsuccessful.

THEN THEY ALL TALK

Then everyone made a speech, but they were all at the same time, so it was difficult to get the gist of them. One of the students, Evelyn Love, a self-appointed leader, led this department of the demonstration which seemed to be the outstanding one.

The result was that what started out to be a serious anti-war demonstration proved to be just another outlet for the boys to get a little fun out of the situation.

The anti-war protests were called in all the major colleges throughout the country, but the Michael Mullins Chowder and Marching Club succeeded at Harvard in bringing the thing for the enjoyment of most of everyone except the members of the National Students' League.

Elsewhere, however, the demonstrations were of a more serious aspect, several suffering injuries in Brooklyn, N. Y., as a result of riot last night as a pride to the strike.

Students at Massachusetts State College planned a walkout, and girls at Smith College will meet tonight. At Springfield College, 24 white crosses dotted the lawn as an anti-war protest.

BODY OF FIFTH BABY FOUND

Cruising Metropolitan District police today discovered the body of the fifth abandoned baby to be found dead in Greater Boston in the last few weeks. The body, that of a five-and-a-half month old boy, was found on the Revere Beach parkway in Everett.

The baby's body apparently had been thrown from a passing car. The police said some one had obviously planned to throw it into the tidal river or the salt marshes, but had miscalculated the distance.

Wrapped in old newspapers and without any identifying mark, the body was found by Patrolmen Bruce Grover and Timothy Sullivan, of the Revere Beach station, near the banks of the South river, a small tidal stream near the Malden river.

Boy Flees Court as Mother Pleads

Newburyport, April 13.—John S. Robinson, 16, escaped from juvenile court today while being arraigned on a charge of breaking into a hardware store. His mother was pleading for him when he suddenly bolted through the door.

Hitler and Marx Have a Time- But Crimson Won't Go Red

On the steps of the Widener Library at Harvard the big demonstration for "bigger and better war" was staged as the National Students' League adherents began their one-hour strike today. The "red dove of peace" was put to rest by "The Crimson Patriots." There was a Hitler, a Marx, a storm trooper and a Michael Mullins. (Boston American photo.)

DILLINGER LED FAN DANCER'S

3 GANG CARS IN GUN RAID

Waukegan, Ind., April 13 (INS)—Three automobile loads of gunmen headed by John Dillinger, public enemy number one, participated in the holdup today of the local police station it was learned.

At the same time, the gunman who accompanied Dillinger into the station was identified as Homer Van Meter, paroled bank robber of Port Wayne, Ind.

The fact that there were two other carloads of men engaged in the daring raid was disclosed by Mike Hodges, city fireman, who witnessed the robbery.

There were at least two or three men in each car, Hodges said. "One of the cars went east and the other two north toward Graham."

Identification of Van Meter was made by Police Capt. Jud P. Pittenger, who was held up on the street, urged and forced to lead Dillinger and Van Meter into the station and unlock the doors. The outlaws took three bullet-proof vests and two revolvers.

So great was the crowd of young men admiring who surrounded her auto after she had given a special exhibition of fan dancing early today in Reading that Virginia Jordan, 21, and Auburn tressed, could not tell where and how the main piece of her costume—that is, the fan, valued at $200—was lost.

It was quite a night, Virginia reported to the police of Auburn, where she told of her loss later. The fan, she said, was in a specially constructed box. There was makeup and some powder, too, but that was all.

Virginia also asked the State police to help find her fan. It is suggested that perhaps one of the young admirers, well sort of collected the feathered fan, and did not realize its value and its worth as a costume to Miss Jordan, if she is to show any more of her act. But the fan was not stolen, believes Virginia. She said, at her home in Clark st., Everett, that she believes that the box "must have jumped" out of her car, and will be found on the state road.

MEN LIKE BOYS TO 'OUR MARY'

Philadelphia, April 13 (AP)—Men, says Mary Pickford, "are like little boys—when they are tired of being naughty they are glad to come home."

Whether her remark has any relation to rumors that she will be married to herself, she said yesterday. "If I discussed it the public would be offended."

Besides making six appearances in a Philadelphia theater, Miss Pickford expects to have tea today with Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra.

Asked whether Fairbanks would join her when she goes to Hollywood in May, Miss Pickford replied, "You know he is engaged on a picture in England."

"Will you say he is a nice fellow?" she was asked.

"With great gusto and pleasure," was the reply.

DOLE PARASITES GET WAR'NING

"Welfare parasites" are draining the city funds and hereafter stiff sentences will be meted out to all those caught, it was declared today in municipal court by Judge Joseph T. Zorilli in sentencing a defendant to a year in the House of Correction.

Frederick Jordan, 46, of East Lowell st., South End, appealed the sentence, imposed after Judge Zorilli refused to accept Jordan's offer of restitution.

The defendant was charged with stealing $111 from the welfare department over a period of 18 months, during which he was employed as a clerk.

Doug, Lady Ashley in Secret Trip to Erin

Dublin, April 13 (INS)—The shadow of a week-end house party as an Irish castle crept today across the horizon of the Fairbanks-Pickford reconciliation, reports of which have had the attention of film devotees throughout the world in recent weeks.

Douglas Fairbanks, it was learned, is a guest of the Hon. Keimsey Plunket at Luttrellstown Castle, in Clonsilla. Also a guest, is Lady Ashley, against whom Lord Ashley has filed suit for divorce in London, naming Fairbanks as co-respondent.

Not only are Lady Ashley and Fairbanks guests at the house-party, but it was learned they journeyed together from London yesterday.

Fairbanks traveled under the name of Smith.

Fairbanks was reported to be increased because his presence at the castle had been discovered and may cut short his visit and leave tonight.

STAR'S GOSSIP

Brisley Plunket is a brother of Baron Plunket, whose wife is the daughter of Fanny Ward, American actress. The Plunkets are one of the best known Irish families.

Their English home is a big country mansion on a large estate 20 miles from London and it was learned today that both Fairbanks and Lady Ashley visited them there some months ago.

The presence of both Lady Ashley and the American actor at Luttrellstown Castle gave rise immediately to questions as to the possible effect of the incident on negotiations for reconciliation between Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, who has a divorce suit pending against him in Los Angeles.

Lady Ashley and Fairbanks have not allowed the filing of Lord Ashley's divorce suit to disturb their associations in London. They are still popular figures in the homes of Fairbanks' society elite and Lady Ashley is keenly interested in the recovery of the title, the privilege of Duke of Devon, which Fairbanks, engaged in making for a British producing firm.

STEAM DEATHS TOLL UP TO 5

Sedalia, Mo., April 12 (AP)—Five deaths today marked the explosion of an improved steam table which turned a happy anniversary banquet into tragedy.

The victims, all women, were showered with boiling water and scalding steam Wednesday night when the table exploded in a temporary kitchen at the Municipal Public shops. In another part of the building, approximately 1500 persons were waiting to be served a dinner in connection with an anniversary celebration. Nine teen women are in a hospital, two of them in a critical condition.

Mrs. J. Ross Kindred and Mrs. T. C. Schaefer, died last night. Others who died earlier were Mrs. Ona Kahrs Hausman, Mrs. Anna Abney and Mrs. Mary Kayser. An investigation of the blast is being conducted by railroad officials and county authorities.

Dr. Wirt Fires Last Volley In Charge

Washington, April 12—Dr. William A. Wirt of the "Red Revolution" charges has been told he may go home now, but not shooting continues and the Hoosier schoolmaster remains, to fire answering volleys.

Up to the dawn's early light to day he had the words—a complete denial of charges by Secretary Jones that he had sought Public Works Administration funds to develop a Lake Michigan beach section into an amusement park. He said the Indiana yard several visits to the PWA on the matter, and seemed "quite willing" to "communist money" for an individualistic enterprise.

Missionary Priest Dies
Hot Springs, Ark., April 12 (AP)—The Rev. John J. Fordman, T. S. missionary priest of the Society of St. Joseph, died last night. He had been prominently identified with church work among negroes.

POWER HOLDING CURB URGED

A demand for protection against the "inherent viciousness" of the uncontrolled public utility holding companies is contained in an open letter sent today by Atty. Weyliffe C. Marshall of Watertown to Senator Augustus G. Goodwin of Malden, chairman of the legislative committee on power and light.

Marshall, who has been battling for several years against gas, electric and telephone manipulations and to bring about lower rates for consumers, asks Chairman Goodwin and his committee to report favorably on abolishing the state public utilities commission sweeping powers over holding companies and their affiliates.

"The Massachusetts legislator who will not protect his constituents completely from the unregulated holding companies and their inherent viciousness is a disciple of devilism," Marshall declared in his letter.

The New England Power Association is cited as the largest local holding company in control over 14 operating gas and electric companies in Massachusetts.

INSULT GAY AS TRIP BEGINS

Aboard train with Remus Insult, en route to Smyrna, Turkey, April 12 (INS)—Apparently now resigned to his fate, Remus Insult grew more cheerful and chatted almost gaily today as he was speeded on the second leg of his long journey back to Chicago to face indictment in the collapse of his vast utilities empire.

Viewing the end of his 22-month fight from the United States prison, the 70-year-old former multi-millionaire even joked occasionally with the reporters accompanying him to Smyrna, a mere 100 miles he was to be placed aboard the American cargo vessel Esthonia and for all extrajudicially from Turkey.

Insult, under a heavy guard of Turkish police, concluded the first stage of his homeward voyage at 4 o'clock this morning when the little steamship Adana arrived at Penderos, on the southern shore of Marmora.

At 2:30 a. m., Insult was placed aboard this train for a 14-hour ride over a 20-mile, comparatively rambling route to Smyrna, where he was due at 8:30 p. m. (1:30 p. m., C. S. T.). The journey was through Iran and Anatolia provinces, across the extreme western tip of Asia Minor.

M'DOWELL PAID IRISH TRIBUTE

Dublin, Irish Free State, April 12 (AP)—Crowds lined the streets for two miles today as the body of William McDowell, U. S. minister, was carried on a gun-carriage from his legation to a railroad train, starting the trip back to the United States.

At the Kingsbridge railway station it was placed on the train for Cogh to be transported to the S. S. Manhattan and home.

President Eamon de Valera waited in the carriage. So did former President William T. Cosgrave, the lord mayor of Dublin, and the staff of the legation. As the procession moved the Kingsbridge barracks with its band playing a solemn march, guns boomed a farewell salute.

King's Men Hunt Wales' Lost Dog

Windsor, England, April 12 (AP)—The Prince of Wales has lost his dog—Jigs, a little Cairn terrier, and the police of two counties have been asked to find him.

Jigs, who often accompanied the Prince on strolls through Windsor Forest, disappeared during the night from Fort Belvedere, the Prince's country house. The Prince was in Glasgow today, but it was reported the telephone wires were kept hot by searchers informing him of their progress.

Pope Pius Greets U. S. Wheat Envoy

Rome, April 12 (AP).—Pope Pius granted a private audience today to Frederick E. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune, who is here as a delegate to the international wheat conference, and Mrs. Murphy. His Holiness conversed cordially with them for 15 minutes. The Pontiff displayed much interest in the wheat meeting, the publisher said.

BLACK BANNER TOPS SCHOOL

Mysterious black shadow, crimsoned with white streaks, drifted over Arlington High School just before dawn this morning at Patriotism. Clinton P. Kennedy approached on his beat.

His moved on toward the school building but was unable to determine just what the shadow meant. He began to count over the holidays of the year and remembered it was Friday, the 13th.

Patriotism P. Kennedy moved out into the deserted street and looked to the top of the building. A black flag with white skull and cross bones whirled in the breeze. Arlington police headquarters were notified. A desk lieutenant rang the telephone number of the building's janitor.

An hour later, the gruesome banner was removed. Police and the caretaker both agreed that the black flag is the prank of neighborhood boys.

Cannon Calls McLeod Bill Just to All

BY RAYMOND J. CANNON
U. S. REPRESENTATIVE FROM WISCONSIN
Written for the Hearst Newspapers

Washington, April 12.—I am emphatically behind the McLeod Bank Payoff Bill because to my mind it is probably the most fair and just legislation propounded by the 73rd Congress.

The measure concerns the ultimate welfare of all the people in every state in this nation. Passage of this bill would mean that overnight the rank and file of our citizenry would realize a purchasing power would be a major and potent factor in alleviating the financial stress now prevalent.

The remarkable progress made by the recovery program would be further enhanced, with the release of so much currency in the hands of those who would be certain to spend it, and thereby keep it in circulation. The timidity and uncertainty which now grips industry and business would be shaken off and a renewed confidence restored.

But, more than that, passage of this bill would mean a new faith and hope in bankers and the banking business. It could not be otherwise, since 2000 millions of dollars would be released by those very agents which retained them.

Of course, considerable opposition against the McLeod bill has been evident from the ranks of the big business men and high financiers.

Pay Bank Depositors TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS:

As an important help toward national recovery, the undesignated urgent passage of the McLeod Bill, now before Congress, which provides for paying in full depositors of closed banks which belong to the Federal Reserve System.

Toward this end I urge that the RFO make loan arrangements with the closed banks.

This procedure would give positive stimulus to business by converting frozen, idle and at present useless bank deposits into immediately available purchasing power.

I urge immediate congressional action on the McLeod Bill.

JuniorsNORMA LIBERTY
DANGERS OF PLAY
CONFERENCE

Norma Brighton Millen's ball head of $25,000 was ready today as it was last night, but Worcester county and Fitchburg police officials were called in a morning conference to determine what steps they would take should she seek freedom from Dedham jail.

Dist. Atty. Edwin G. Norman, Chief of Fitchburg Police Thomas J. Godley and State Detective Edward McCarthy were among those at the safety.

They had handled the investigation centering around the murder of Ernest W. Clark, Fitchburg sporting goods store manager, on December 11, 1933.

NO WARRANT WAITING
When preparations were first made to bail Norma several weeks ago, it was indicated by Fitchburg authorities that, should she be freed, they would seek her arrest. Bail arrangements were halted at that time.

Today, Dist. Atty. Norman said "there is no warrant in this county for her arrest," and then explained that any charges relating to the Worcester grand jury, covering May 1.

Chief Godley said: "We shall accede to the wishes of Miss Atty. Dewing. I am sure that neither Dist. Atty. Norman nor myself would wish to interfere with the procedure."

Dist. Atty. Dewing mentioned Fitchburg in an address to the court shortly after Norma's arraignment yesterday on secret indictments charging her with being accessory to two murders, and just before Judge Brown was to decide on the bail question.

BAIL IS REDUCED
He said: "I feel it is my duty to call to your honor's attention the fact that I have information as to certain evidence against this defendant, not only on these particular indictments, but also as to the fact that she is implicated in crimes committed in other sections of the Commonwealth, in Worcester, Fitchburg and Lynn."

Atty. George Douglas, counsel for Norma, objected that the prosecutor was discussing matters beyond his jurisdiction, which was Norfolk county.

Then Judge Brown allowed a reduction of the bail, on which Norma had been held as accessory after the Needham bank holdup, from $25,000 to $500.

On the charge of being accessory after the fact of the murder of Patrimonia Forbes McLeod of Needham she was held in $10,000. On the charge of being accessory after the fact of the murder of Patrolman Frank O. Haddock she was held in $10,000.

But for some reason, despite his declaration that he had the $25,000 bail ready, Atty. Douglas made no move to free Norma.

NORMA A WITNESS
"I don't care to discuss that," he responded to a question on his reason for not bailing his client.

The long-standing problem as to whether or not Norma was to be a witness at the trial of her husband, Murton Millen, his brother Irving and Abraham Faber, was solved yesterday.

She was served with a subpoena to be present in Dedham court-house on April 13, and told to hold herself in readiness to be called in the defense case.

Dr. Simon Carlisle Allen and Dr. Ray H. Shattuck saw Faber today, and his counsel, Atty. William R. Scharton, declared the doctors were making blood tests.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Faber, parents of the prisoner, also visited their son, while Miss Frances Millen, sister of Murton and Irving, visited her accused brothers.

CLOUDS CAME IN A SULLEN FROWN

As the hours dragged and liberty from Dedham jail was not forthcoming, Norma Brighton Millen, the minister's daughter in jail for banditry, changed her moods again and became sullen and a bit anxious. She had little to say as she waited liberty.

THEN SUDDENLY, SHE SMILED!

Then at some thought or other, a smile overspread her face and it seemed as if sunshine entered the sombre walls. The waiting was not so hard after that smile and relaxation—even though hope for freedom faded as the hours passed. (Boston American photos.)

Koenigsberg, Germany, April 13 (AP)—Members of the East Prussian Nazi Youth Organization rallied behind their leader today for a "finch fight" for supremacy over the Catholic Youth Movement.

Their chief, Herr Ammerlaan, told a mass meeting last night the Nazi association was prepared for the battle and intended to see it through.

He referred to Catholic clergymen who have encouraged their organization in defying Nazi orders to disband and merge with the Hitler band as "hypocrites."

Ammerlaan declared reports that a recent Catholic youth rally at Heilbronn, Berlin suburb, was broken up violently by Nazi youths, were circulated to discredit the Hitler youth organization. Then, he added:

"I ascertain we have opponents in Germany who are spreading lies from the pulpit. However, we will not let these hypocrites get us down."

4000 AUTO TOOL MEN STRIKE IN DETROIT

Detroit, April 13 (AP)—Detroit's tool and die industry strike, affecting between 2500 and 4000 men, is on in 50 shops.

Workers ratified strike plans last night. Picketing started at midnight when the Automotive Tool and Die Manufacturers Association, an organization of job shop operators, refused the workers' demands for a 20 per cent pay boost and a 35-hour week.

The strike does not affect those tool and die workers employed in the automotive industry proper but only those in the job plants.

In a few cases job plants which negotiated separate agreements with their employees also were exempted. Most of these exceptions were independent shops not affiliated with the manufacturers' association.

The strike was called by the Mechanics Educational Society of America, the Tool and Die Workers Union which claims 22,000 members in the Detroit area.

NO VIOLENCE, SAYERS

General Secretary Matthew J. Smith claims the society has 2000 tool and die workers in the job shops but not all of these are included in the walkout due to negotiation of satisfactory agreements in some cases.

Police said there had been no violence as picketing started.

A mass meeting of tool and die workers is to be held on Monday night to decide whether the strike shall be made general.

Industrial circles appeared much less concerned today over the tool and die job shop strike than a general unemployment of men in the ranks of labor in the heart of the motor industry.

NEW DEMANDS MADE

Evidence of the unrest was shown in the scheduling of a meeting Sunday in Pontiac of several branches of the United Automobile Workers.

American Federation of Labor affiliate, William Collins, chief organizer of the Federation in the auto industry denied, however, that there was anything unusual in the meeting.

New developments also included the direct demand in manufacturers by Pontiac locals asking a 20-hour, five-day week with a minimum wage of 60 cents for unskilled labor. This overtime was new in that it ignored the national automobile labor board, the subject of apparently increasing disfavor in labor circles.

Fraternity Elects

Storrs, Conn., April 13.—Storrs L. Erickson, 35, North Woodbury, has been elected president of Alpha Gamma Rho Fraternity at Connecticut State College.

Disorders in Industry Growing

By the Associated Press

New disorders clouded the industrial scene today, causing the arrest of sixty persons in Philadelphia.

Further strikes threatened in Connecticut, and glove cutters in Gloversville, N. Y., prepared to go on strike unless their wage demands are met late this afternoon.

The Philadelphia arrests were made when strikers, pickets and police clashed in front of two knitting mills. Automobiles were stoned near one plant.

Pickets were on duty at the Viscose Company plant in Lewistown, Pa., as the "hunch period" strike spread through the force of 4000 employees. Less than 400 workers were reported on duty. A crowd estimated at 1500 milled outside.

The strike was called by the Mechanics Educational Society of America, the Tool and Die Workers Union which claims 22,000 members in the Detroit area.

PLANE PLANTS FACE STRIKE

New Haven, Ct., April 13 (AP)—Further strikes were threatened today throughout the state and 200 striking workers agreed to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor.

Employees of the Chance Vought Co., manufacturers of airplanes, will meet tonight at Hartford to discuss possibility of a strike, thereby following the example set by 1500 aircraft workers in two other Hartford companies.

The Chance Vought workers yesterday declined to take part in a strike strike arrangement carried out in the plants of the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Co. and the Hamilton Standard Propeller Co.

The Pratt & Whitney employees moved their case up to the point where demands will be presented to the employer.

60 Held in Strike

Philadelphia, April 13 (AP)—Sixty persons were arrested today in a strike strike arrangement carried out in the plants of the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Co. and the Hamilton Standard Propeller Co.

The Pratt & Whitney employees moved their case up to the point where demands will be presented to the employer.

27 Held as Radio Pickets Stone Cabs

New York, April 13 (AP)—A brief clash between pickets and employees of the Teledyne Engineering Corp. resulted in the arrest of seven strikers today.

The pickets hurled stones at taxicabs carrying employees to the company's plant. Six men were injured. Officials of the company said 100 of more than 120 employees walked out Wednesday, and that as a precautionary measure those remaining have been brought to work in taxicabs.

BEATING POLICE IS COSTLY FUN

Parkers are having their troubles. Today, being Friday the 13th, was one of particular trouble for a would-be parker in front of police headquarters, where he should not have tried to leave his car anyway and where he should not have tried to beat a police car to the space particularly.

But the civilian driver swung too wide and smashed a car passing in Berkeley st. It was necessary for the civilian to get out and away, papers with the driver of the car struck—and then Traf. officers came. The driver walked over and ordered the hasty parker away.

He went away, with a damaged fender and with damage to settle on the other car.

800 HATTERS TO GO ON STRIKE

Danbury, Ct., April 13 (AP)—The United Hatters local will go on strike Monday morning, over 800 members have decided in a ballot, because of the inability of manufacturers to restore wage scales to the 1929 level.

Union officials were informed by the manufacturers that they were in no position financially to meet the hatters' demands.

There is "no interfering" between hatters and the manufacturers, John O'Hara, president of the strike union, said.

The manufacturers reported they could not raise wages owing to "cut-throat" competition on the part of "outside chiselers."

FIND WAY TO FIRE GOODWIN ELY MERELY WILL NAME NEW BOSTON FIM. COM. HEAD

Criticism to Cost Stormy Petrel His Salary. Mayor Mansfield In Conference at the House

Chairman Frank A. Goodwin of the Boston Finance Commission will be ousted from his paid job by Governor Ely through a motion that will be automatic with the appointment of a new chairman, the governor intimated today.

Goodwin came under the fire of both Mayor Mansfield and the Governor yesterday as the result of comments he made on Mayor Mansfield's economy policy at City Hall. Mansfield challenged Goodwin to resign, and Governor Ely followed with a statement that the chairman was "shift."

"Do you intend to remove Goodwin?" reporters asked the Governor today.

"It's possible that a change will be made," came the reply.

"Do you mean by appointing a new chairman and thereby making Goodwin an unpaid member of the board?"

"The Governor smiled, knowingly. Goodwin laughed heartily at statements published in another afternoon newspaper to the effect that 'the governor is only foolish to bolster up the courage of our City Hall ass man.'"

"I kidded with a reporter. I didn't think you could tell reporters," he said.

Goodwin's removal, if it takes place, will not come before the meeting of the Governor's council next Wednesday.

Gov. Ely and Mansfield conferred today.

Council Plans Inquiry on Snow Jobs

Reports of alleged waste and extravagance in expenditure of municipal funds for snow removal will result in a City Council demand on Monday for a grand jury investigation, it was learned today.

Payments to 14 contractors engaged in snow removal are being scrutinized by councilors as a preliminary to Monday's action.

Upon what grounds the council demand will be based was not revealed today, but it is known that the investigating officials have conferred with inspectors of the public works department who recently were suspended as a result of Mayor Mansfield's economy program, and who had supervised snow removal work.

Charges were made several weeks ago by Councilor Selvetti that one concern was receiving payment for ash and garbage collection in his district and for snow removal in Charlestown while actually performing only the latter service.

Selvetti is not engaged in the Council investigation or in the drive to place the matter before the grand jury.

2 Barrow Gang

Red Springs, Ark., April 13 (AP)—Two men believed by police to be members of the gang of Clyde Barrow, the desperado, were captured today and two men, one of whom was suspected of being Barrow himself, and a woman, escaped.

Body Found in Camp
Burlington, R. I., April 13.—The body of James R. Steere, 21, of Hartford, was found in a camp on Zia Lake, Paconog.

Bodies of 2 Girls
Go Back to Homes

Klamath Falls, Ore., April 13 (INS)—The bodies of two beautiful San Francisco Bay region girls, discovered in deep snow 10 miles east of Crater Lake, will be returned to San Francisco today for burial.

The girls were Miss Corle Sparks, 22, and Miss Audrey Martelle, 27, demonstrators for a Hollywood costume firm. They had been missing since last October.

Ely Frowns on Pay Bill Setup

The bill restoring part of the cuts made to state employees is not satisfactory to Governor Ely and will be returned to the legislature for downward revisions, it was definitely learned today.

Fail on Liner Kills Man

Hamilton, Bermuda, April 13 (INS)—In attempting to demonstrate to his wife how easy it was to climb into an upper berth, James Dillon, 27, Hartford, Conn., sustained fatal injuries. It was learned when the Queen of Bermuda docked today.

LEFTOVERS IN DAINY DISHES

Secret Is Right
Blending of
All Foods
By Martha Lee

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB.
Do you turn your leftovers into meat? A good business man is always on the watch for ways of avoiding small losses because he realizes it is here the most serious losses may occur. In the same way the clever housewife gets ahead of the game by turning leftover foods into appetizing dishes that are substantial as well.

SCRAMBLED EGGS, TOMATO AND FISH

1 tbsp. butter
6 eggs
4 tbsp. milk
4 tbsp. tomato ketchup
1 tsp. salt
Dash of paprika
1/2 cup leftover fish (baked fish, tuna fish, or salmon)
Melt butter and add eggs which have been beaten with the milk. Cook very slowly, stirring gently, and when the eggs begin to thicken, add ketchup, salt, paprika and fish. Continue cooking slowly until the eggs are creamy. Serve at once. Garnish with parsley and sweet pickles.

QUICK MEAT STEW

2 tbsp. butter.
1 to 2 cups diced left-over meat (pork or veal) ...
2 tbsp. flour
1 medium can soup
Melt the butter in a frying pan and in it brown the meat. When the meat is brown, sprinkle with flour, mix well and add soup. Cook, stirring gently, until thickened, and serve.

2 cups ground cooked beef.
1 cup bread crumbs.
1/2 cup milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 tbsp. chili sauce
2 tbsp. butter, melted
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper

Mix the ingredients in the order given and place in buttered casserole or baking dish. Top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) for about one half hour. Serve hot.

SALMAGUNDI

1 cup boiled potatoes, diced
2 cups boiled ham or pork, diced
1/2 cup cooked peas
1/2 pint milk, chopped
1/2 cup celery, diced
1 sweet pickle, finely diced
1 cup mayonnaise

Yolk ingredients together lightly. Arrange on top lettuce. Garnish with additional mayonnaise, sections of hard-cooked eggs, and beet slices. Serve six.

Six Luncheon
Suggestions

Such simple luncheons as these are intended for the mother and school children, for the house guest, who likes a big breakfast and a big dinner and "a snack and a nibble" at home. If men of the family come home at noon and are engaged in rather heavy outdoor work, additional foods should be served, especially meats and potatoes.

Grape Fruit Shortcake M-M-M!

A grapefruit shortcake makes a delightful and springlike dessert for any dinner, from the simplest to the most formal.

Correct Food
Insures Good Health

Remember how children down on the farm used to run away from home in the spring? Pests around the post office thought it was the traveling circus or the spring wanderlust—but our sugar-buster now reveals it was the annual sulphur and molasses bath that drove more children away from home than Barnum and Bailey.

Modern dietitians today claim it isn't at all necessary to dose the whole family with sulphur and molasses in order to this in blood to a normal spring temperature. Just regulate the meals—and the blood will regulate itself. A good rule to follow is—when the thermometer goes up, let the meals come down! Serve a little less and the blood will regulate itself. A good rule to follow is—when the thermometer goes up, let the meals come down! Serve a little less and the blood will regulate itself.

With a Baked Tomato Surprise for the main course and Cracker and Jam Pudding for the dessert, you can be assured of serving a nutritious and at the same time, light enough meal to keep the sulphur and molasses well in the background—and keep the children at home!

BAKED TOMATO SURPRISE

6 fresh, medium sized tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
3-4 cup celery, finely chopped
1 teaspoon finely chopped onion
3-4 teaspoon salt in filling
1/2 cup crisp crackers, finely crushed
1/2 teaspoon paprika

1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
1/2 cup cream or milk
Dash of pepper

Remove thin slice from top of each tomato and scoop out pulp. Sprinkle inside of tomatoes with one teaspoon salt. Combine tomato pulp with other ingredients and stuff into tomatoes. Bake in buttered dish at 350 degrees F. for 40 minutes. Serve six.

(3 tablespoons grated American cheese may be used instead of Parmesan cheese.)

CRACKER AND JAM PUDDING

12 crisp crackers, finely crushed
1 cup milk
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup raisins, beaten
2 egg yolks, beaten
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
1/2 cup cream, whipped
1/2 cup jam

Soak the crackers crumbs in milk. Cream the butter and sugar, add lemon juice and rind. Stir in the egg yolks and combine with the cracker and milk mixture. Lastly, add egg whites. Butter a deep pudding dish and put jam on bottom. Pour in cracker mixture and bake 20 minutes in moderate oven. When finished turn pudding out upside down and serve cold. Serve six.

New Meat Skewers

New meat skewers have just been put on the market, large metal pins about three inches long. Use them to hold the fowl together instead of stitching it.

Carrots and Potatoes

Sliced carrots added to potatoes for cooking gives a new flavor and a golden color. Pits in with color schemes, these yellow "white" potatoes.

MISSING GIRL FLED BRIDAL

Worcester, April 12.—Found: One bride-to-be, missing for more than a week.

When Mrs. Ruth M. Brown, 21 of Milford disappeared a week ago two days before her marriage to Alphonse J. Roy, of Uxbridge, the distraught bridegroom-to-be and parents had not heard from her. Today Mrs. Brown was found by a Boston American reporter, she has been staying with friends here. "I just went and was away," she said. "There will be no wedding. I don't like Alphonse enough to marry him and the only reason I've been seeing him is because my folks, not I, love him."

Her parents, she explained, had been urging her to marry and last week she consented. She and the prospective bridegroom got a marriage license, Roy, she said, spent the last two dollars for the license.

"What will we live on?" she asked him.

"Oh, that's easy," he replied. This answer again changed her mind, she said. She fled to Worcester where she intends to remain.

Senate to Probe Arms

Washington, April 12 (AP)—The senate has ordered an investigation by a special committee of the manufacture and traffic in arms.

'Uncle Sam, the Goat,' Says League Foe

"I am an artist, which I am not, and I would draw a cartoon showing Uncle Sam, the Big Goat, pouring men, money and supplies into bankrupt Europe."

So writes Mrs. Theresa Pearl, of WAR CLASS CREATOR

"Another World War would create just two classes, wealthy beyond imagination and beggars."

The handy, nation-building middle class will be wiped out.

"The League and World Court are supposed to function solely to keep the world at peace. Everyone knows it has been a failure."

"Therefore I am pleased to sign the Boston Evening American anti-World Court petition and cannot see how any clear-thinking American could do otherwise."

Included in the heavy mail was a letter from Bernard E. Good, of Worcester, enclosing 50 signatures.

"Every honest, resolute, straight forward, and well-informed patriot should have our nation's interest at heart by opposing the international capitalist trap to ensnare our government for the League of Nations and World Court."

CLERS BACK DRIVE

"A sufficient experience and warning how the international capitalist class got our country into the World War with all its detrimental consequences to our government and about 95 per cent of the United States citizens should be for all times an unforgettable lesson to "keep out of all foreign entanglements."

The co-operation of many social and fraternal organizations has in- vited thousands of admirers to wards the million that will be pre- sented Congress through the ef- forts of the Boston Evening Ameri- can and Boston Sunday Advertiser and associated Hearst newspapers.

They are asked to lend your as- stance by signing one of these pe- titions. They are available at your neighborhood store and motion pic- ture theater or may be obtained from the World Court Petition Dis- tribution, 5 Winthrop St., Boston.

Aldermen Assail

State Rum Board

The Somerville Board of Alder- men, led by Frederick L. Rosevear, today went on record as opposed to the action taken by the state liquor control board which ordered licenses issued to liquor stores within 300 ft. of schools and churches in that city, following refusal by Somerville authorities.

The crowd calls and cheers, as the small-sized cowboy, held up in his mother's arms, and waves a hand to him. That boy and mother will have something to tell.

In Atlanta recently a business man who was asked: "How do you feel about the President in Georgia?" replied:

"Anybody with anything to say against Roosevelt here might as well shoot himself, and save some- body else the trouble."

If you could see these railroad station crowds, the women espe- cially, you would know how "THICK" people feel about the President.

Colored men and women come eagerly to meet the train, in- cluding the old, that probably never expected to feel enthu- siasm for a Democrat. They have a reason. A little while ago, a majority of them were idle and worried about food for their children. Such unskilled work as they could get was paid twelve cents an hour, $1.20 for ten hours.

Recently they have been hired by Uncle Sam, digging ditches to eliminate mosquitoes, build- ing roads, etc., with workmen nearer than jobs, and getting forty cents an hour, $4.40 for six hours, which is bet- ter than $1.20 for ten hours.

They wanted to see the man who had arranged that kind of "Bolshevik communism," as Mr. Roosevelt's stuffed shirt call it.

On the train the President, talked to the regular newspaper- men, young, eager, crowding around him, huddled in a small room, with M. H. McIntyre, the President's secretary, as shepher- d of the flock. The President answers every question, without stopping to think it over.

There is only one answer in direct dealing.

The rule is that a direct quo- tation, putting words in the President's mouth, must be sub- mitted before publication. Indi- rect quotation is not restricted, and the President knows he can trust the newspapermen, indi- vidual and collectively, as to accuracy.

The names of today's group of young men that feed the public with news are Hurd, Stephen- son, Rodden, Blumenthal, O'Donnell, Warner, Dure, Lockett, Kilkins. Also there was Kermit Roosevelt, distant cousin of the Presi- dent, first cousin of Mrs. Roose- velt; M. L. Annenberg, who owns the Radio Guide, the New York Daily Telegraph, and some other publications, and guests from the Astor hotel; William Rhinelander Stewart, George H. George, Dr. Leslie Kistler, Judge Frederic Kernochan.

After he had talked to the young newspapermen, the Presi- dent talked to your reporter, now writing. As you would sur- mise, the President spent much time thinking while others were fishing, and has plans ahead that will interest you, as they develop.

Thoughts that write to him every day will be glad to know that no letter is ignored. The President is like Francis Bacon, in that both in their wide inter- ests can say with the ancient, and Augustus me alterum puto.

Best of all, the President is well, full of energy, determined to get things accomplished, glad to hear from those that disagree with him, ready to change, if it can be shown that he has taken the wrong road.

ROOSEVELT AID OWED GANGSTER

New York, April 12 (IN)—Twenty-five notes for $250 each, payable monthly until last Febru- ary, and made on October 1, 1931 by Guernsey T. Cross, secretary to President Roosevelt when the lat- ter was Governor of New York and appointed last June to the legal staff of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, were found among the assets of Max Green- berg, beer runner who was shot and killed in Elizabeth, N. J., April 12, 1933.

This was revealed today after an appraisal had been made of Greenberg's estate. The appraisal showed that Greenberg, who was once described as the "brains" of the Water Garden beer case, had left an estate of $267,115 gross and $110,000 net.

Greenberg was sentenced in St. Louis in 1915 to serve four years in Leavenworth for arson and lye- cency, but was later given a full pardon by President Wilson.

Nomination Bill

of Teachers O. K'd

The Legislative Committee on Education today reported favorably a bill to give superintendents of schools the right to nominate to the local committee teachers to be employed.

It was explained that the Boston school committee has a rule which allows this practice, but that it could be abrogated anytime. The bill is designed to make the nomi- nating rule by the superintendent a law.

EXQUISITE DAINTINESS ADDS TO NATURAL CHARM OF FRESH, YOUTHFUL BEAUTY

Have You Heard About Spicy New Deodorant in Silver Box for the Purse?

By Carol Ames

NO SOPHISTICATED WOMAN is guilty of neglecting complete daintiness, but young girls troubled with excess perspiration may need a word of warning. While this is not a difficult problem to overcome, it is one that should be watched carefully, especially by those inclined to overweight. Bathing the affected parts with cold salt water, after the cleansing bath, is an effective way to reduce perspiration and to correct an abnormal condition.

Many youngsters douse themselves with toilet water but a strong scent is apt to call attention to the condition, rather than overcome it. The only efficient method is to use a good deodorant daily, immediately after bathing. Then you are sure, at least for a number of hours, if you plan to be gone for a longer period, it is best to carry the handy little silver box that I shall tell you about today.

Many women use a preparation that is not only a deodorant but that checks perspiration entirely for a number of days. But there are those who are not fully about the use of such preparations and need a daily application. For you can easily check perspiration only on a particular day, since it is very important to have a clean, clear skin, throwing off the poisons of the system must not be disturbed too much. You must be careful, too, not to apply a preparation of this kind too soon after using a deodorant, under the arms or elsewhere on the body, as it may cause a rash or other skin trouble.

After using a deodorant, wait for at least ten minutes before applying a powder or cream. If you use a powder, it is best to use a light, translucent powder, and not a heavy, white powder. It is best to use a light, translucent powder, and not a heavy, white powder.

Telephone to Carol Ames, Liberty 10-10, for the name of the deodorant that comes in a silver container, and where it may be found in Boston.

Beauty Questions

Question: My hair is very dry and lifeless looking. You advise to get my new spring permanent until my scalp and hair are in a more healthy condition. Will you please tell me what to do? I'll certainly appreciate it as much. — M. F. Cambridge

Answer: Daily brushing, light scalp massage with your finger tips, and a series of hot oil shampoos will help to overcome temporary dryness and put your hair into proper condition for a new permanent. If your hair is so dry after your permanent it is wise to take another series of hot oil shampoos. You can get these at a hairdresser or a beauty shop or take them at home if you prefer.

Buttermilk

Question: Is buttermilk fattening? I drink a quart every other day. — B. W. G. Boston Answer: No, buttermilk is not fattening. Centrally it is part of many non-fattening diets.

Tap Dancing

Question: Do you think tap dancing will help one to reduce the fat? — Ruth, Voltaire

Answer: I am not sure that tap dancing would help to reduce the fat, but practice it just the same. It's a good exercise and healthy.

Coquetry in Curls of Empire Period

A DEMURE CENTER PART, a fringe of curly hair hiding the forehead, just the pink lobes of the ears in view, and hair smoothly brushed upward from the nape of the neck, breaking out into fluffy curls and braids, this was the coiffure of Loretta Young as the ravishing daughter of the House of Rothschild. "But," you might say, "Loretta is the looks. I could not fix my hair that way." You can. Now compare Loretta Young's hairdresser with the picture next to it and then make your decision.

IT IS A THOROUGHLY modern evening coiffure that you see here—hair brushed nigh from the nape of the neck, the center part with wide, smooth waves, and rows of curls instead of braids; although there is nothing to prevent you from following the fashion of putting on extra braids, and heightening the quaint Empire effect. A Boston shop did this effective copy of Loretta Young's hairdresser, and if you wish to know its name, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Miss Carol Ames, or call LI 8-4000.

Blemishes Are Successfully Removed

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A correspondent asks, "Is there any truth in the statement that a wart is a sign of cancer, and even though the wart is removed, the cancer will develop?" I have corrected this unfounded and unscientific statement. Warts are described by the quack as a sign, benign tumors of the skin. The word "benign" is used to describe a tumor or growth which is harmless.

A "malignant" tumor is one of a different nature. It is true that a malignant tumor may develop into cancer, and eventually it may lead to cancer. The latter is a fact, but the wart is not a sign of cancer.

It is probable that a great deal of confusion exists regarding the difference between the wart and the cancer. The latter is a fact, but the wart is not a sign of cancer. It is a common mistake to think that a wart is a sign of cancer, and that it will eventually develop into cancer. This is not true. Warts are harmless growths of the skin, and they can be removed without any danger.

For the removal of a wart, it is necessary to use a special preparation. This preparation is applied to the wart, and it will gradually disappear. It is a simple and effective method, and it can be used at home. The preparation is called "Wart Remover," and it is available at most drug stores.

ARE YOUR SHOES TABLE D'HOTE OR A LA CARTE?

In Dining... table d'hote is what the restaurant tells you... a la carte is what you tell the restaurant.

In Shoes... table d'hote means a handful of arbitrary shapes to fit everybody... a la carte means a flexible range of custom lasts to fit you.

Now, a table d'hote meal once in a while is very good, but it's a serious matter to walk around in table d'hote shoes all day long.

This institution doesn't make them, doesn't carry them, doesn't believe in them, and has for 63 years been inflexibly opposed to them. Everything at Coward's is a la carte.

With, however, this one qualification... the prices are very much table d'hote.

You get the custom last your foot calls for, and not the arbitrary and very often injurious product of a limited range of shapes.

MRS. R. W. MEANS

Mrs. Langdon Warner is largely responsible for the production of an eighteenth century opera, "The Sailor's Return," to be given on the evening of Thursday, May 10, at the Women's Republican Club. It will benefit the South End Music School, a worthy welfare establishment which all through the depression of the past four years has brought solace in the form of music to people who for the most part have been lacking for everything save the necessities of life.

The opera was discovered by Mrs. Warner in one of the least frequented files in Harvard's Widener Library. Dusted off, it proved to have been written by one Dr. Christopher Arne, in the year 1760.

Sets Designed by Mrs. Roger Warner

MRS. ROGER WARNER, one of the committee members, will design the sets for this opera. Others on the committee are Mrs. John Phillips, Mrs. William Spaulding, Mrs. George Poole, Mrs. Edward Taft, Mrs. G. M. Brooks, Mrs. Chester B. Humphrey, Mrs. Samuel Hoar and Mrs. Robert W. Means. The orchestra will contain among other instruments, a harpsichord to be played by Putnam Aldrich.

Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Bigelow of Chestnut Hill are moving down to their summer place at Milton Mass., the first of June to arrange for the wedding there of their daughter, Mary Jane Bigelow and Frederick Crocker on June 9 before commencement. The attendants will be announced later.

Miss Harriet Huntington Smith, niece of Mrs. George J. Putnam, who makes her home at the Myles Standish Hotel in the Back Bay, will be married at a small wedding in Leslie Lindsay Memorial Chapel on May 19 at 11 in the afternoon to Mr. Mason Tuxbury Whiting... a small reception will follow.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bemis of Milton are spending the week-end on the Cape with friends at Olatum... on May 2 Mrs. Bemis is sailing for London en route to Australia for a five months visit with her family.

Recovering from Operation

FRIENDS OF YOUNG MRS. B. DEVEREAUX BARKER, JR., are happy to learn that she is recovering from her appendicitis operation... Mr. Barker was glimpsed at the Silly Symphony last evening with his mother Mrs. B. Devereaux Barker.

The beautiful Clare Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Parker of Mt. Vernon street, who has resided in Paris since her presentation during the season of 1926-27, will join her parents in England. The James Parkers have placed their house on Beacon Hill on the market and are leaving the U. S. A. to make their home in England where they have a daughter married and domiciled, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Butterworth (Virginia Parker).

As an added feature of the April Ball this evening, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Champagne will give the interpretation of the champagne waltz after the lucky number waltz is over. Three bottles of the golden wine will be donated as prizes to the winners.

Models at Style Show Benefit

PUNCH'S WORKSHOP is presenting the mannequins in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," today and tomorrow and "Cinderella," on April 19, 20 and 21. This is a favorite rendezvous for the little folks at 71 Chestnut st.

"The King of the Golden River" is the Clare Tree Major of fering on Saturday at the Repertory Theatre... crowds of little deb-to-be and their youthful escorts flock to this theater on Saturdays to add to their pleasure and education along the lines of the children's classics.

Miss Cynthia Wires, Mrs. Morgan Hamlin, Miss Elizabeth Hovey, Miss Caroline Harmon, Miss Foy Harmon, and Miss Marcia Hovey are among the elite who will be models at the fashion show which will benefit the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children which is being staged at the Russian Bazaar on Monday, April 23, from 3 until 6 o'clock. Tea will be served.

The Gilbert and Sullivan operetta "The Gondoliers," will be staged by the Milton Hamlin, Jr., will be Casilda, Sarah Shipley will be the Duchess and the male leads are Carl Atwater and Alan Sturgis.

League of Catholic Women to Conduct Fashion Show

ALL PATHWAYS MERGE at the Copley-Plaza on Saturday afternoon when those who are in search of new thrills and a little added zest, will find them at the fashion show and bridge sponsored by the League of Catholic Women. A parade of mannequins begowned in modes for summer, ranging from the simplest of sports attire to radiant frocks for those balmy afternoons in June, for mountain side and seashore, will present an alluring picture.

Miss Anna A. Comerford, chairman, will select the models. Miss Mary Harrington, director of the show, will be shown before the first models for which reservations are already coming in. Miss Mary Harrington, president, is assisting Miss Helen M. Callahan, of Belmont, in the direction of this party.

A season baseball pass for the man holding the lucky admission ticket and an exquisite fur scarf for the lady holding the lucky admission ticket will be drawn at 6 o'clock. Saturday Club Helen Marshall Plans Dance Also Honored Before Ball

THE SATURDAY EVENING CLUB will have another gala formal spring party on Saturday evening, April 21, at the Hotel Statler. This affair marks the last dance of the month and next to the season's closing function which is scheduled for May 5. A large and enthusiastic committee is working hard to make the dance a pronounced social success and due to the fact that the fifth season of the club is nearly ended, it is expected that a large gathering of friends and members will attend.

Some of the girls whose names appear on the committee for these popular dances are Miss Dorothy Rogers, Miss Elsie Price, Miss Mary Scott, Miss Dorothy Carroll, Miss Gladys Thurber, Miss Mary Manning, Miss Elizabeth Desmond, Miss Ethel Peterson, Miss Jean White, Miss Ruth Conant and Miss Victoria Ritchie.

Barbara Frost Among Models

Miss Marcia Hovey, a graduate of Miss Allen's School in New Newton, who has recently hung up a shingle announcing that she is the proprietress of a knitting shop on Newbury st., will display her hand-made costumes in a fashion show and tea at the Russian Bazaar on Monday afternoon, April 23 from 3 until 5 p. m.

Miss Eleanor Halliwell, Miss Barbara Frost, Mrs. Morgan Hamlin, Miss Elizabeth Hovey, Miss Virginia Rice and Mrs. Robert Cushing Terry have been detailed as mannequins in this social event which will benefit the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Other models will be Miss Cynthia Wires, Miss Caroline Harmon and Miss Foy Harmon.

THIS IS LIFE

We Would Do Well to Let Nature Take Its Course.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

AN astonishing story came through the A. P. the other day from a town in Ontario. It concerns a man who for 30 years past has done most things a normal man can do—and with steel hands.

When he was 17 years old he fell against a buzz saw and lost both hands and forearms. He had to earn his living. He could not depend on his father, for his father was blind.

The blind man and the armless boy set to work designing and making usable arms and hands. They made them out of steel. They cut out the steel, filed and ground the fingers and joints from the hard metal. When they were finished they had five grips of various sizes and different degrees of leverage. Two grips are made up like the man draws his hands toward his body; the others open when the arms are extended.

"They have no sense of touch," Gray says, "but they have perfect control, shape himself, dress himself, tie his knots in a rope, throw or catch a baseball. He has even learned to make an automobile, ride a motorcycle. He has been known to lift more than 200 pounds dead weight with one hand. He is now 49 years old, still earning his own living, handling tools with the skill of a master craftsman, and using artificial limbs for others afflicted like himself."

JUST a newspaper yarn, you will say. But it is true. I have seen the man. Just as I believe that other recent yarn, that a foreign surgeon has discovered how to put a man's legs back into his body when one of the two chief muscles is destroyed, and is now acting and allowing the person to walk naturally. Nature covers them with a protective sheath, and they are natural muscles, and they co-operate perfectly with the natural muscle that remains.

Why not? For a good many years now have been seen cases of two things. First, that man's control over his own body is pretty nearly perfect. Inability to use the body freely and expertly is to all kinds of difficult and complicated things is only a lack of practice, and practice, tenacity and patience. The marvels of self-training are endless and beyond belief.

Second, that there is literally no limit to what man can do in matters of wrestling with materials and the laws of nature and subduing them. His will, his determination, are merely an extraordinary instance of something that happens all the time. Here, would you think, is a man up to an armless man and a blind man "just to make it harder."

Can you solve any problem? You want to solve involving the material world, mathematics, mechanics, measures—anything that stays put.

THE most ancient peoples knew that. What does the story of Daedalus and Icarus mean? It is a story of the wings of a man, the wheel, the sail, the labyrinth, wings. His son Icarus fell, not because the wings did not work, but because Icarus was blasphemous. How few men are like that. They are the gods. It took some thousands of years to get the blacksmith, the carpenter, the cooper, the joiner, the Wright Brothers flew and a Belgian succeeded in the machine, the realm of the sun, and Dr. Beebe descended into the realm of Neptune, and so on.

What ever can be done with the human body, the machine, the matter, man can do. There is no effective obstacle to the body's development, and to the machine's perfection.

Where, then, does man fail? In doing what man is in that respect it would seem that man has made no appreciable progress since the earliest days of recorded history. Almost one believes in "the eternal recurrence," since man goes on making exactly the same mistakes generation after generation, century after century. I never learn.

WE CAN tell whether an athlete is stung quite right or wrong. We can tell when an invention of a machine works right. No doubt about it. But everything we do about the improvement of the human body, the improvement of mind, the advancement of ethics remains a puzzle, the answer to the machine we know. Generation by generation we foster ourselves that the new ways are better than the old, more ethical, more advanced, more progressive, more rightly human.

But is that just our fancy? The chances are at least fifty that the matters of education, of moral relationships, of law and peace, of ethics as good as those of our fathers and grandfathers. They may be more idealistic, but they are not more practical. The question is: do they work any better? And most often we must answer sadly. No. The more elaborate and ambitious and self-righteous our notions about bettering the world, the more likely they are to flop.

We can control mind or spirit, conduct or will. We can make money in our pockets to be as good as an efficient as possible in the things we do, and for the rest, to let nature take its course.

"I got the idea while I was in India."

READING-WRITING: By WILLIAM SOSKIN

IF novels about the soul, the soul of the hav, the lick of the cow's tongue and the mysterious something back in the woodshed no longer come out of England, the fault is entirely Miss Gibbons' fault. Last year she wrote a composite parody of all the novels that have ever been published. It was The Cold Comfort Farm and it is a drama of the four continents, Americas, Pacifics, Pontics, Adriatics, and their following nations, but it is a novel of the large, momentous of my life.

Miss Gibbons now sends us a novel, Basset, which is by no means a spoof, which does not even attempt to carry on the gaily effective version of her former book. That seems a sensible protest to me. Apparently she does not want to prolong her joke any longer. Neither does she desire a sudden transposition of the sort many comedians court, a quick change from Charlie Chaplin to Mark Twain. Basset is therefore free from the kind of parody that Miss Gibbons calls this story. There are two spinners involved in it—Miss Basset, of Reddown paper patterns who acquired 200 pounds and lost her job all in a few weeks after some twenty years of domestic work; the other Miss Basset, of the gentle, who lived in Basset and regarded her as a vulgar bit, Miss Basset returned the compliment, and looked upon Miss Basset as a foolish old fool-doodle-doodle. They were together with their adventures as ladies who took pay-packets, however, both of them changed their names to Basset.

AGAINST this last quality note. Miss Gibbons plays the story of the more modern and worldly people, the kind of effect that comes from her mother's companion, Queenie, with whom George Shelling is in love. The book is a comedy, and it is a comedy of good plan, which have them strength to go to the end, on the strength of a good plan, and a definite end, and a definite end. Queenie was a disappointment. Nobody saw, but there was a growing feeling among the older citizens that Queenie was a "well," it is Queenie's hard luck to want to be seduced by this charming fellow, George. Her husband, George, was too much submerged in the pleasures of his family to want to marry. George could not stand violent feelings or love or anything of the sort, so he was a growing enemy for reality, so he shrank from it.

Books and Convicts

THE recent revelation that the convicts on Welfare Island used the books of their prison library for fuel in the stoves that warmed the island. World! And it cast an undervalued cloud on convicts in general. For, after all, Welfare Island is only an isolated incident. Inmates of prisons are frequently men of culture and refinement and are even bookworms or bibliophiles.

Wasson State Prison the warden reported that the two sets of the Harvard Classics in the prison library have had to be replaced three times within three years. And he goes on to say that the most literary and scientific works occupied the most prominent positions on their reading shelves.

At Auburn Prison there is a steady and increasing demand for classical and biographical works. Several thousand volumes are lent out by the library. One writer sold five stories in 12 months.

The love for good literature is not confined to the convicts of the United States. For the English Commissioner of Prisons recently reported that the two authors whose works were the most demanded by the prisoners were Shakespeare and Shaw.

HELPFUL DEFECTS

Arnold Bennett's Stammer Made Him a Writer
By HAVELOCK ELLIS

LONDON The question of "queerness," which has so often occupied me, is always showing some fresh aspect, and it is not confined merely to mental twists. It covers the whole field of life, both body and spirit. Biologically, it is natural to all life. There is a tendency everywhere to slight variation, obvious or concealed. To fancy that one is a "queerness," psychic or physical, is not normal, it is the sign of what is normal.

Arnold Bennett's stammer emphasizes the significance of constitutional queerness and defects and of what is termed the "masculine protest" against them. The subject of such a stammer or abnormality is so determined to conquer it that in his efforts he goes to the opposite extreme and may even succeed in converting his defect into his great quality. Demonstrated, overcoming his stammer by declaiming with pebbles in his mouth, to develop at length a superior oratorical style, supplies the typical instance.

BUT there is another way of approaching the problem of queerness, just as sound biologists and equally valuable in its results. Instead of combating them, they may be utilized for the purpose of all their stimulating reactions on the rest of the personality.

Arnold Bennett, like Dostoevsky, stammered. But, unlike the latter, he did not allow it to interfere with his splendid balance and normal outlook. He accepted it. That stammer was the portal to the art in which he became a writer. The stammer, which forced him to "introversion," became a source of strength.

So that a queerness, instead of arousing reactions for its own defect, may be accepted and accepted. It may be maintained, and in its maintenance stimulate activities of the whole organism without it, it would have languished or never developed.

Arnold Bennett's stammer was a defect, but it was a defect which was a source of strength. It was a defect which was a source of strength. It was a defect which was a source of strength.

IT is the queerness itself which is a source of strength. It is the queerness itself which is a source of strength. It is the queerness itself which is a source of strength.

There is a physiological basis for this process. It is especially apt to occur in men of rather unusual organization, those apart in nervous and psychic structure from their fellows, whether for good or ill.

The process is recognized and advantage taken of it in medicine. The physician constantly sees in a disorder which would normally produce painful and disturbing symptoms, acts almost as beneficially as Arnold Bennett's stammer, or for a time a narcotic drug acts, not only harmless in itself but beneficial in its general effect.

THE study of queerness extends far and deep. We have to realize their significance and importance. If under modern conditions, men are everywhere being deprived of our rugged romantic individualism, there are still fields left where individualism is precious.

"Must you boys always talk shop?"

ALLOW ME TO SAY: By C. HANSON TOWNE

THE other day I came upon some couplets by Mark Cook which delighted me. They concerned that state which we must all reach, sooner or later, if we go on living—growing old.

At six—I will remember when—I fancied all folks old at ten. And he went on to tell us that at 15 he thought none old until they were 21. And when his 20th year was told, he knew that it was only at two-score that men grow old. But when he had reached 40, he mysteriously felt as young as when he was six. And he was "wondering still, while years have rolled, when he is that a man grows old?"

Yes, when is it? I remember reading an article by the late William Dean Howells years ago. Someone had asked him how old he felt to be 75, and in a charming essay he responded that he felt just like being 35—with this difference: that if, in the older years, he took a morning stroll, one did not, as he used to, take a walk in the afternoon.

AGE is a matter of the spirit. I met a charming lady the other evening who had passed 75. I assure you she did not look a day over 35. She was a widow of life, without being silly, as so many widows are, and she was one who had had her faces lifted and their hair dyed. She was at heart, younger than anyone in the room, and she would be young until the last bell sounded.

There is a difference between being old and being mature. No one expects a person who has reached 75 years of discretion to do the things that children do. Yet why should these advanced age and sagacity?

MAN of 50 told me solemnly, that he knew he would be old, and he was willing simply to sit back and dream. He had no more to do than to sit on his morning mat. Breakfast was still his best meal, because with it came the letters he loved to receive, and he had never opened an envelope without a new and small sense of adventure. A telegram in its provocative yellow envelope always excited him, and he was a small sense of adventure, a manly debater for telephone calls, for visitors, and his evening game of bridge.

He would probably live to bury his son, and he would be a great deal older than he is now. He would be a great deal older than he is now. He would be a great deal older than he is now.

VAGABONDIA

The People of Pompeii and How They Lived
By BRUNO LESSING

POMPEII—After many a visit to Pompeii, careful study of its private and public buildings and quite a bit of historical reading, I think I can give you a clear idea of the people who lived here in that famous city. Some of them, it is said, were even honest.

There were bankers. People accounted them with their money. The financial affairs of the people went up and down but the bankers got richer and richer.

They were well cultured and cultured men. Pompeii, the great Roman historian, had a house there. They kept to themselves and played a small part in the daily life of the city.

There were rich senators from Rome and politicians and army supply managers. They were all there, it is said, when Vesuvius erupted.

There were patricians, Aristocrats whose grandfathers had been rich and famous. They were great land owners and lived upon the fruit of the labor of thousands of slaves. Some of them, it is said, were even honest.

There were many good women, some of them were very good. And there were women who were bad.

There were actors and artists and skilled artisans who contributed to the public enjoyment and who, while they were wealthy, Rome, just as Pompeii, were not without their faults. Versing, adulation and glit hand.

There were a great many of simple, honest and stupid workers who toiled and toiled, all their lives, and just managed to exist.

There were slaves, whose lives were a torment. They were even honest.

The temptation to moralize is so strong that I assert my will power and resist the temptation. I think the best start would be to compare the people of Pompeii with those of the old Rome.

SINCE a great Roman philosopher killed himself, by the way, because he was so tired of the world, I think that Pompeii "abundant in vice, ruse and pleasure." It was a great resort for wealthy Romans, just as Palm Beach and Pasadena are for rich Americans of later years. I think that Pompeii, although you think a philosopher would be above that sort.

If Pompeii had been destroyed merely by a terrific wind of gold and silver, it would have been a great loss. The furnishings of those rich palaces would have been preserved. Unfortunately the ashes were glowing hot and the lava ran in a molten stream. It was a great loss. It was a great loss.

Upon some of the stone, especially in the paintings and the original color. Probably because these ancient artists used a material for their paints that we do not use.

FROM those colors and designs you can see the artist's luxury. The rich dwellings. The house of the Vettii, the most beautiful of the houses, shows in its arrangement of garlands and flowers, in its furniture and decorations, what a rich and cultured family desired as a home and what a fine and luxurious life they led.

But I regret even more the numerous fragments of the most beautiful of the houses. The fragments of the most beautiful of the houses. The fragments of the most beautiful of the houses.

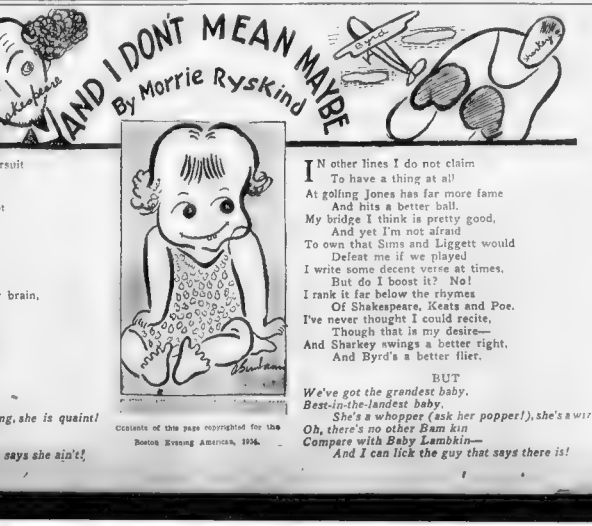

But I regret even more the numerous fragments of the most beautiful of the houses. The fragments of the most beautiful of the houses. The fragments of the most beautiful of the houses.

But I regret even more the numerous fragments of the most beautiful of the houses. The fragments of the most beautiful of the houses. The fragments of the most beautiful of the houses.

But I regret even more the numerous fragments of the most beautiful of the houses. The fragments of the most beautiful of the houses. The fragments of the most beautiful of the houses.

But I regret even more the numerous fragments of the most beautiful of the houses. The fragments of the most beautiful of the houses. The fragments of the most beautiful of the houses.

But I regret even more the numerous fragments of the most beautiful of the houses. The fragments of the most beautiful of the houses. The fragments of the most beautiful of the houses.

Gray Squirrel

HIS tale upon this aspen tree
He sits and gravely looks at me
He sits like an ancient plume
Or a great velvet bloom.

That, curving upward in an arc,
Makes of him a little harp
Which, when the wind comes, might have
A voice as sweet as mine.

Upon a bough when he had hung
And, with his head and tail, a quart,
Changed it into a silver squirrel.

parade of Congressmen through the streets, headed by the President. The President's return was a triumph for the "tough" side of the administration. He was met by a group of senators and congressmen who were waiting for him at the train station.

LAD BY RAINY
In the front rank marched Speaker Bland of Illinois, majority leader Joe H. R. of Tennessee, Rep. Arthur C. of Maryland, Democratic wing, and "Dough" Sabath of Illinois.

At the station the parades found a score or more of senators, including two Republican Progressives, Nye of North Dakota and La Follette of Wisconsin. There were present, too, Vice President Garner, Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, and the President's son, Elliott, and a host of lesser celebrities.

FROM WIRT TO WORK
As the presidential special stopped, Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Dall and Elliott went into the private car, and greeted the President. Then he came out on the rear platform on the arm of his "little son Jimmy" six feet, two, of Boston.

Congress Hails Him in Strangest Parade

"Well, well, good morning—" he began.
The band struck up "Happy Days" and they had to wait until that was over before there was any further conversation.
"I'm glad to see you all," the President said, when the last notes of his old campaign song died away.
"It is good of you to come down to welcome me. I can truthfully say I'm glad to get back in welcome."

a good time, I understand Congress has been very busy.
"You people have been going from Wirt to work."
There was a roar of laughter at this reply.
"The newspapermen on the way up," he continued, "tried to get me to say that I wanted Congress to go home."
"I wouldn't say that, because I hope you stay as long as you want."

"For you younger people in Congress, I want to point out that the Washington climate is fine—it is rarely cold over the here, and there is no humidity. I don't care how long you stay."
"I have come back with all sorts of new lessons—learned from barmaids and sharks."
"Come up and see me, and I'll show you some tricks I've learned."
"I'm really a tough guy," he concluded with a laugh.

The La Touraine Coffee Plane

with CASH PRIZES and FREE AIR RIDES

Watch for the Airplane with the Big White Spot on the wing - flying over Greater Boston-Thursdays, Friday, Saturday - Join the "ALTITUDE" Guessing Contest.

HERE'S fun for everyone—and a chance to win a real cash award or a FREE ride over Boston in this beautiful Travelair Cabin Monoplane!

The LA TOURAINE Plane will fly over Greater Boston, Thursday, Friday and Saturday this week. It will reach its altitude each day over the Hotel Statler. The plane will then circle Boston and surrounding cities, maintaining as far as possible the same average height determined by Captain Winepaw, world famous pilot. YOU merely estimate the height at which you think it's flying and send in your figure. Just to make it easy for you, here's a tip—the altitude will be between 1000 and 3500 feet. Remember—every one is eligible! No technical knowledge is required—your guess is as good as any one's!

Just as the LA TOURAINE Plane soars high over Boston, so does LA TOURAINE Coffee stand highest in the minds of thousands of coffee drinkers who feel they "might as well have the BEST."

They choose New England's very own blend, the coffee that is definitely roasted to suit New England's tastes—the one coffee above all others that assures a truly satisfying cupful—LA TOURAINE!

Capt. "Bill" Winepaw, one of the country's most experienced pilots, flies the LA TOURAINE Coffee Plane.

The Red Sox Evil
Mascot Swings Into Action Once More

Imp of Misfortune
Still Sticks to Boston Club's Trail

By AUSTEN LAKE

The old Red Sox jinx perched its disreputable form on the edge of a porcelain tub, in which young Eddie Connolly, third string catcher, was taking a bath and sloshing himself over with suds. The old jinx, veteran manipulator of a dozen Red Sox disasters and top-hex of all major league jinxes, was yanked as he watched the chubby youth dunk himself in the creamy lather, and the veteran misery-maker stretched his scaly neck to scratch his leathery hide, his green eyes glowing like twin traffic lights.

"That gives me an idea," rasped the old jinx in a sandpaper voice, annoyed because a young jinx, nothing more than a kid as previous, an untested squirt with a must-clever face and pun-fun of broken glass on his bottle body, had been freshly assigned to the Braves this spring, direct from some leaky roofed, minor league. And the kid had started off by afflicting the Braves with a variety of busted bones and assorted agonies that was like to win him a reputation. Nothing more than an adolescent, booby jinx, too, who had been learning his first kindergarden agonies, like putting sliding raspberries on players' thighs and spreading silt letic foot, when he, the old man, had been performing masterpieces, wrecking special trains, setting grandstand fires, and slighting Mr. Bob Quinn's best players.

Red Sox Hex Gets Busy Again

Boy, there was a man who could take it, Bob Quinn! And the old jinx fell to gloating on the disaster he had spread before Eddie Collins and Tom Yawkey had bought Quinn out, telling off the miseries he had effected in the old day, while Bob's hair grew silver and his jaws grew gnarled from clinching his teeth. He hadn't done so badly under Collins, a train wreck during the 1933 training season, the blight that he had put on the team later and those elbow chips in Johnson's and Fippras' arms.

And now this little punk with the Braves bobs up and fractures Maranville's ankle—O, a neat enough job for a kid jinx, but no finesse—and then lately he fractures Bobby Smith's wrist. Well, the old man had turned a stunt or two this spring on his own hook. Hadn't he inserted a $100,000 ache in Lefty Grove's arm that had taken the town by the ears, and hadn't he torn a ligament in Dusty Cooke's arm.

So, that little squirt of the Braves wanted to race eh? All right.

And now, as Eddie Connolly finished swabbing himself and prepped, pink and fresh, from the tub, the old jinx skated a cake of soap under his lead foot, and, stretching his scaly neck, wailed "Now." Eddie's foot skidded sharply, and he fell against the tub's edge, breaking his right arm.

"O, K," cackled the jinx, curving his mouldy beak in a sneer. "That'll hold the Braves cub for a spell."

Then, while he was in the spirit of the thing, the veteran mischief maker flapped out and cooked up a messy street brawl between Eddie Morgan, the Red Sox first baseman, and a rugged, tough-looking taxi driver, wounding Eddie a couple of very nice black eyes and a thick nose. Which was a clever subtlety on the

the old jinx's part, knowing that Stanley Harris is a stern schoolmaster who has been watching Eddie closely during the training season. And he was not disappointed when Harris took the big man into his private woodshed and deprived him of his uniform and position for the time being.

"Now," said the jinx, with a wistfulness in his leaky eye "if I could only give the boys ptomaine poisoning."

The Ache Heard Round the World

And so this morning, after an uneasy training season, the Red Sox come back to Boston to give their home folk a preview with the Braves, the evil eye still being on Lefty Grove's arm which is a matter of national concern, comparable with the attacks of flu, infection, sprains and operations which Babe Ruth experienced in his day and which brought reporters and camera men arming to sit on the stoop as they might for the President men of their country. Though by comparison, Grove's ache is only a fewer case ache when compared with that of Eddie Connolly, or even the dull pulsing in Eddie Morgan's black eyes. But by constant repetition in the journals, Grove's ache has become a world wide ache, translated into every civilized language, including the Japanese.

Eddie Collins was quick to get his athletes under glass in the Hotel Touraine, lest the old Red Sox hex should cut down some more of his boys before they put on their brand new uniforms at Braves Field this afternoon. It is too late to catch a black cat by the light of the moon and burn its tail-fur in a graveyard, so he is taking the rudimentary precaution to keep his middle fingers crossed. Or he may resort to his old-time anti-lock charm of chewing up a five-cent wad of gum and sticking it to the top of his hat, as he used to do when he was playing and wanted to keep the curse off his batting eye.

GORMAN TO QUIT HAWKS IS REPORT

Chicago, April 13 (AP)—Chicago hockey fan, in the midst of a celebration over the victory of their Blackhawks in the Stanley Cup battle today, read reports that Tommy Gorman, manager of the team for the last two years, would not be back at the helm next season.

Gorman, who departs from Ottawa today to confer about his approaching duties as secretary of the Quebec Hockey Association, said he plans for next year were quiet. He denied rumors that he would be replaced as manager, but in the same breath pointed out that his affairs were quiet and upon the racing association, which gave him a two years advance to leave hockey to the Hawks.

Major Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the championship club, and nothing had been done about replacing Gorman again as manager, but that he had been a for granted that Gorman would be back.

Gorman also is expected to have received tentative offers to manage other National Hockey League teams. One report was that he was asked to manage the Ottawa club if that franchise is transferred to St. Louis.

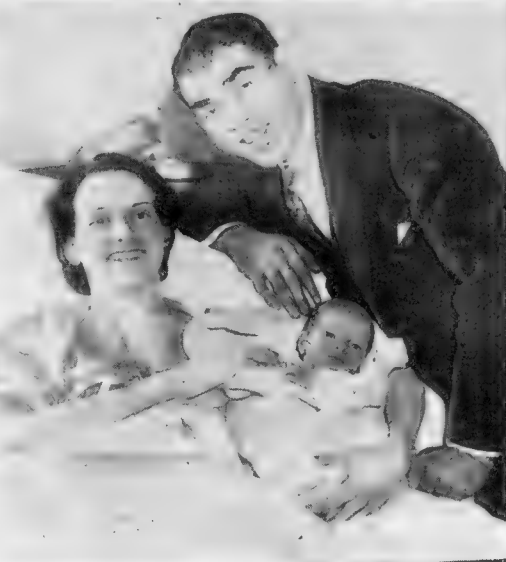

Yawkey on Hand

The baseball luge which brought young Tom Yawkey into the game as a manager, proved too powerful to keep him away from the opening of the city series at Braves Field this afternoon.

The young millionaire rushed up from New York for the first game. He made a complete inspection of the new Fenway Park, ready for the opening of the regular season next Tuesday, and expressed himself as delighted with the structure.

He was especially delighted at the surprise sprung on him by Eddie Collins, who had a dramatic debut built into an inside wall of the park, telling of the rebuilding under Yawkey's direction.

'Jumping Joe' Junior Looks Worried

There's a new addition at the Savolids' home, Mrs. Savoldi presenting "Jumping Joe" of Notre Dame and wrestling fame with a ten-pound heir. And now Savoldi is planning on a larger production of hamsterlocks and tuc hults to feed the extra mouth. Perhaps the newcomer is worried over where the provender will come from judging by the deep corrugation in his week-old brow. (International News Photos.)

Nyma Cubs to Play N. Y. Team

1-Nyma Cubs will play the New York team in the National League. The Cubs will play the Yankees in the first game of the season.

Morgan Benched Indefinitely by Harris

The "mallet fist" of Bucky Harris, new Red Sox manager, swung on Eddie Morgan, first baseman, today, and Morgan not only will be out of the city series with the Braves but may miss action in several of the opening clashes for the regular American League season.

Harris benched Morgan on this as a disciplinary measure after Morgan broke training rules in Newark yesterday and had an altercation with a taxi-driver to his physical disadvantage. He showed up at the Newark ball park, where the Sox played an exhibition with the Bears with facial bruises and an eye dislocation.

This is the first show of authority made by Harris since he took over the reins. It is likely he intends to wield the big stick with action in the first exhibition game.

"I want to teach Morgan a lesson," Harris explained. "He is physically fit and able to play, but I am sure this action will have an important bearing on his future conduct."

With Morgan sitting out, the Sox will use Joe Judge as a pinch runner for the first game.

Goodman Leaves to Join Cup Team

Ottawa, Nov. 13 (AP)—

Johnny Goodman, American cup champion, joined a team of the best hockey players in the world to play for the United States.

Goodman, 24, is to play in the World Cup, for the United States, and then to rush home to defend his open championship.

Ralph Metcalfe in Quarantine

Chicago, April 13 (AP)—

Ralph Metcalfe, who had been in quarantine, today was released from the hospital and will be able to play for the Chicago Cubs.

THREE AQUATIC MARKS FALL

Three new national swimming records were on the books today following the University of Michigan New England all star meet at the Brookline municipal baths.

Michael won the 400 yard relay, the second event, 20.42 yard. The Michigan team's time was 2:38.15.

His brother of Michigan, gave the most interesting exhibition of living ever seen in New England.

Umpires Named for A. L. Openers

Chicago, April 13 (AP)—Will Horvath, president of the American League, today named the umpires for the opening of the league on April 15.

In the Western opener between the Sox and Boston on April 15, the umpires, McGowan and Simmons will officiate.

April 15's game is for quitters, on the Sox side, are Egan, McGowan and Simmons. On the Red Sox side are Egan, McGowan and Simmons.

Which should be your best buy?

The two cigars on the left were good 5c values for years. The other cigar—Bayuk "Phillies"—was the outstanding 10c brand in America for years. All sell today for 5c.

Ask yourself... ask any dealer... which cigar should offer you the best value for your money.

Dealers know—and millions of experienced smokers know—that "Phillies" is NOT a regular 5c cigar. It's a guaranteed 10c value now selling for 5c.

This guaranteed 10c quality explains why men—accustomed to paying double or triple its price for their cigars—are smoking "Phillies."

Have YOU tried Bayuk "Phillies"? If not—smoke one today. It will give you a new idea of the pleasure you can—and should get—from a cigar.

Bayuk's Guarantee In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (familiarily known as "Philadelphia Hand-made") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine ripe Domestic and Havana long-filler. It's the same identical cigar.

Mr. Boston Says:—

George Dodges Dusk
DeGlane Takes Place
Irish Henries

By Jack Conway
ED DON GEORGE has taken an unusual stand in regard to Ernie Dusk, 25-year-old Nebraska heavyweight. George is perfectly willing to wrestle Jim London or Jim Browning, but continues to refuse to enter a ring with Dusk in a return contest.

Mr. Boston

George returned the contest's unexpected. He did not stand by his original decision, made in the first bout with Dusk, to ban the latter from the ring. George is now on a losing streak because the referee used a bold and new did a bit of eye gouging in their last match. I visited George in his dressing room after his usual with Dusk. The champion was in poor physical condition as a result of the roughness of the contest. He was in his dressing room of 12-13. He was obliged to remain here for several days until he recovered from the effects of the contest.

Ed came through with Dusk in a recent bout with Dusk in a recent bout. He has probably concluded to avoid Dusk in the future.

DeGlane Lands Match

WHEN HENRI DeGlane learned that George had cut out of his proposed contest with Dusk, he immediately signed to battle the youthful Nebraskan. The Frenchman believes that if he likes Dusk he will be in line for another championship bout with George.

Irish Heavyweights

THE PACT Jack McCarthy and Dick Madden, come from Irish stock has added new interest to their ten-round bout at a shanty A. A. show at Mechanics Building on next Monday night. Irish and Irish-American heavyweights have always been good drawing cards in Boston.

Jim Maloney, former South Boston heavyweight, drew $250,000 in bouts here. The public always wanted to see Shamus win, and didn't protest even when his was battling setups.

McCarthy and Madden come from different sections of the island. Each has a large following, and the rivalry between the two is keen.

JOHNIE JALON of Lynn will take punches at Pancho Villa of Waterville, Mr. in an eight-round bout at Salem on next Monday night. Hamilton and Villa, each have their last starts. The winner will try to obtain a bout with Harry Delane of Worcester, New England heavyweight champion.

CORCORAN CLARIFIES GOLF'S CASUAL WATER RULE

Satchel Feet Goes Gunning for Baer Meat

Knotty Casual Water Rule Explained by Corcoran

Golf Rules Nos. 27 and 23

By Fred J. Corcoran
As told to Bill Grimes
"Here, boy, what are you doing?"
"What do you think I'm doing? I'm in casual water and taking a free lift. I'm entitled to it."

"Nerts to you. You may be in casual water but you're in the rough, where there's no such animal as a free lift."

Explaining this particular point of casual water, allow me to state that "rough" is nothing more or less than uneven surface. Players are entitled to the same privilege on the uneven surfaces of a course, as they are on the cut surfaces.

Therefore, if you play a ball into the rough, you are entitled to a free lift, the same as though you were straddled down the middle and in casual water. But remember that in either instance you must drop the ball as near as possible to where it lay.

COMPTON WAS RIGHT
Let me cite an instance that happened at Sandy Hurst during the world famous Walter Hagen-Archibald Compton match in 1905.

Compton was in a hole and the seventh tee. Upon arriving at the spot where his ball came to rest he declared he was in casual water and therefore entitled to a free lift.

Immediately a goodly portion of the gallery which numbered in the thousands, began to boo and hiss. Compton, due to the ignorance of the rule, just as soon as A. J. Ayer, president of the M. G. A. was notified of the situation, he ruled the Bilton was within his rights.

Before turning to the next rule, let me bring out again that a ball in casual water on any part of a course, except in a hazard, may be lifted without penalty and a free lift is the penalty for lifting out of casual water in a hazard in ONE stroke.

For example a player drives into the rough in the vicinity of out of bounds. With the other members of his foursome, he goes to the spot where he believes his ball is at rest. After searching for a few minutes, it is suggested by him or another member of his party, that he return to the tee and play another ball, to save time, but that in the meantime, they

Jumbo Squad Works Outdoors First Time

Coach Ken Nash of the Tufts diamond squad will work his charges outdoors this afternoon for the first time this season. In view of the fact that the Jumbo meet the Boston University nine tomorrow afternoon on the Tufts Oval, this one day of practice is as necessary as the nine itself.

Coach Ingraham, at catch, and Olin Burden, at short, will retain their berths. All other veterans are to have new berths. Three regulars have been drafted to work on the mound for pitching material.

Some speculation that will be tried will have Jack Bristol at first.

Tech-Brown Lacrosse
The M. T. T. lacrosse team was to meet its first out of town opponent today, facing Brown at the Techology Coop Field. Luther Galtie, planned to start the same ten men that edged B. U. last week, with Burger star goalie, in the Engineer case.
